

THE MONEY COACHES

“All you need is love. But a little chocolate now and then doesn’t hurt.”

Charles Schultz

This fall we are debuting a new tool to help you!

Here at the Money Coaches, we’re always excited by the prospect of finding ways to help our clients and their families better their lives. We are lifelong learners, so we are definitely excited to share with you a tool we learned about that we’ll be adding to our lineup later this year.

This fall we will be starting our rollout of the Harrison assessment. We will be targeting Ceres employee’s children who will be a junior or senior in high school or are currently enrolled in college. The Harrison assessment measures personality factors, interests, passions, preferences, and expectations in order to help your student better understand their aptitudes, capabilities, and fit in various tasks and roles. Many of us were fortunate to have the services of a Guidance Counselor during our High School years who offered an assessment that was used to assist us in choosing a career. Because of the changes in the role of a Guidance Counselor, we believe the Harrison assessment will fill that void and provide valuable career guidance.

For those who are preparing to go to school, the Harrison assessment can be a critical means of focusing attention as they prepare to head to college. With student loan debt soaring, the days of going to college with an “undeclared” major should be long gone. The cost of education is simply too high to waste time figuring out what you should do on-the-fly. Taking the assessment as a junior or senior in high school or early on in college can help students avoid some of the pitfalls of ballooning student loan debt that has exceeded $1.7 trillion dollars. That figure has left many students in situations that force them to delay home purchases, contributing to 401(k)’s, getting married, having kids, and sometimes advancing in their careers.

By taking the Harrison assessment, students can learn about how they are hard-wired: their specific gifts and abilities, what they are likely to enjoy and how they might best work to pursue a fulfilling and successful career. In this way, they can head into a school environment which will best prepare them for a job they will be well suited for. If you would like to find out more about the Harrison assessment, what it is, what it can be used for, or how to get the process started for your high school junior, senior or college student, you can reach out to us directly, or through themoneycoaches.com. Ceres families will have access to the Harrison assessment completely free, courtesy of the Money Coaches. As always, it is completely confidential, so don’t miss out on a chance to help your student learn more about themselves.
